

Acting as a flexible 'extra safety team member' for our client

PRATER
A Lindner Group Company

Client vision:

As one of the UK's leading envelope contractors, Prater has a varying level of high profile contracts in progress at any one time throughout the UK. The internal safety team are highly competent but are limited in numbers and recognise the benefits of using 4see for additional health and safety support.

How 4see helped:

4see has a national team of highly qualified, specialist consultants across the UK that can be utilised by our clients. Having worked with Prater for many years, developing policies and procedures at a strategic level, we are very aware of their requirements as a business and have formed a unique relationship with them.

This enables us to act as 'the extra safety team members' when Prater's safety team need additional support during peak times. We implement the same processes as their internal team which means that they maintain the level of consistency required for the management reporting in everything they do. This arrangement also means that when workloads quieten in less busy periods, Prater are not burdened with the costs of surplus employees.

“ We find that the flexibility of the 4see offering allows us to be confident that they will deliver in line with our expectations. They provide a seamless approach to what sometimes is a very difficult resourcing issue. ”

Brian Butler, Senior Safety Manager, Prater
